I come from Cambodia which is located in the South East Asia and known as Cambodia the Kingdom of Wonder. For my academic life, I am taking two bachelor degrees, and I have graduated from one of them which is Finance and Accounting at Economic and Finance Institute. Recently, I am a fourth year student of Royal University of Phnom Penh majoring in International Business.

Besides my university life, I also explore new things, new experiences and knowledge throughout international exchange programs or conferences. In 2013, I have participated in ASEAN future leaders' summit that was held in Penang, Malaysia and Hatyai, Thailand, and also in International Youth Conference 2013 held in Jakarta, Indonesia. I also was selected to volunteer in the 5th University Scholars Leadership Symposium. My role in international stage shows my interest towards global concern and network, which results in better understanding from one to another in purpose of make a world change to a better place, and that is why I attended YPA9.

With my knowledge and experiences nationally and globally, I strongly hope my future would be bright. I myself believe in empowerment, or roles of youth in society. Youth is a main pillar for country development, youth can make a world change to a better place, and I believe in youth as I believe in myself, as a change maker for my society and even the whole world.
